

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

coercion or intimidation, to prevent others from entering or remaining in the service of their employer, is unlawful, Union Pac. R. Co. v. Ruef et al., 120 Fed. 102; Butterick Pub. Co. v. Typog. Union, No. 6, 100 N. Y. Supp. 292; Levy v. Rosenstein, 66 N. Y. Supp. 101; but a broader and better doctrine that there may be a moral intimidation was announced by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts in Vegelahn v. Guntner, 167 Mass. 92; this was among the first of the judicial steps taken in this country towards overturning the rule permitting peaceable picketing and was a forerunner of the later rule that there can be no such thing as peaceable picketing and consequently, that all picketing is illegal. Franklin Union v. People, 220 Ill. 355; Beck v. Railway Teamsters Protective Union, 118 Mich. 497. Picketing will be enjoined as a continuing injury to business, notwithstanding it may be punishable as a crime, and the right to injunction against it has been based upon the ground that the aggrieved person is entitled to protection of his "probable expectancy," which is defined as the right to enjoy a free and natural condition of the labor market. Consolidating Steel, etc., Co. v. Murray, 80 Fed. 811; Arthur v. Oakes, 63 Fed. 310.

TRIAL—REMARKS OF COUNSEL—EXCEPTIONS.—PRESSY v. RHODE ISLAND Co., 67 ATL. (R. I.) 447.—Held, an exception does not generally lie to the remark of counsel, but to the refusal to charge the jury in regard thereto, when reasonably requested so to do.

This is rather an odd way of stating the rule which is usually put thus: "The remark must be objected to or called to the attention of the court in some way when made, or at least during the trial, that opportunity may be given to the court to prevent or correct any abuse." Ill. v. Evanston, 150 Ill. 616; State v. Ward, 61 Vt. 153; State v. Waters, 63 Me. 128. When no exception is taken to the remarks of counsel, and no motion is made to exclude them, objection to them will not be considered on appeal. Nelson v. Shelby, etc., Co., 96 Ala. 515. If the court interferes and the objectionable remark is promptly withdrawn, the error will generally be deemed to be cured. Dunlap v. U. S., 165 U. S. 486, 498. An abuse of attorney's privilege in this regard may be so flagrant as to warrant reversal, although the court and opposite counsel neglected to discharge their duty. Klink v. People, 16 Colo. 467. It has been held that it is error for the court to allow counsel to discuss irrelevant matter before the jury, and that this error is not cured by the failure of opposite counsel to interpose objection at the time. Willis v. McNeill, 57 Tex. 465; Prather v. McClelland, 26 S. W. (Ct. of Civ. App., Tex., 1894) 657. It has been held that it is not necessary for the counsel to present point of objection, and if he does not do so, the duty is where it properly belongs, on the judge. Berry v. Georgia, 10 Ga. 511.

TROVER AND CONVERSION—WHAT CONSTITUTES.—MEDINA GAS AND ELECTRIC LIGHT Co. v. BUFFALO LOAN, TRUST & SAFE DEPOSIT Co., 104 N. Y. SUPP. 625. Plaintiff corporation executed to defendant, as trustee, a mortgage to secure the payment of certain bonds, depositing the bonds with defendant. Subsequently, one of the officers of the plaintiff, who owned practically the entire stock of the corporation, agreed with the defendant that the bonds in its possession should be pledged to it for his own individual indebtedness. Held, that the subsequent delivery of the bonds by the defendant to another constituted a conversion by the defendant of the bonds. Scott and Laughlin, JJ., dissenting.